"The Garcés Silva family was among the first to plant grapes in Leyda, in 2000. Boya, the family's second label, has all the attributes that have come to be associated with sauvignon blanc from the region: It's citric and firm, with a firm texture and lovely herbal and especially fruity notes. The aromas and flavors are influenced by the sea breezes from the Pacific, the austere texture by the granitic soils of the coastal hills. A surprisingly fresh and vibrant 2015."

"Reticent, subtle, leafy and floral aromatics with well-integrated oak spice. Firm, beautiful mouthfeel and texture, with strawberry and raspberry fruit flavours as well as delicate herbal and savoury-sweet characters. A magnificent Pinot Noir from the coast of Chile, with a deliberately understated style. Great ageing potential for those who can resist."
