

ARGENTINE WINE CAPTURES GLOBAL ATTENTION

JAMES SUCKLING

“The quality-value ratio is so impressive [and] the combination of pure fruit and minerality is show-stopping... Not heavy and not overdone - that’s where Argentine wines are now.”

James Suckling, ‘The Many, Diverse Wonders of Argentina’, June 2017

DECANTER

“Argentinian producers seem to be learning how to take advantage of the fresh influence of the Andes to produce more elegant wines.”

Patricio Tapia, ‘World Wine Awards 2017’, July 2017

WINE & SPIRITS

“Argentina has been paying attention to the grower-producer movement. The talk now is about organics, blends, old vines and the shift to fresher, brighter styles.”

Wine & Spirits, ‘28th Annual Restaurant Poll’, April 2017

ROBERT M PARKER JR.’S THE WINE ADVOCATE

“People, places, soils, rootstocks, varieties – they are all part of the equation that defines quality...”

Luis Gutierrez, ‘Argentina: 2016 - The Sky Is The Limit’, December 2016

TIM ATKIN

“The country’s wines have entered a new and exciting phase... Right now, there’s a dynamism and vitality to the Argentinean wine scene that I haven’t seen since the 1900’s. In fact, it’s even more exhilarating than it was then, thanks to the emergence of new regions, styles and winemakers, and a renewed sense of self-confidence... The future of the wine industry looks extremely bright.”

Tim Atkin, ‘Argentina 2016 Special Report’, April 2016

VINOUS

“Current releases from Argentina are strikingly different from wines of just a decade ago. In recent years, Argentina’s top grape-growers and winemakers have sought out cooler, mostly higher-altitude sites and soils more conducive to making fresher, more complex, better-balanced wines.”

Josh Reynolds, ‘Argentina: The Cool Years’, March 2016