SUNDAY'S SPIRITS

SUNDAY'S WHISKY

ABOUT THE SPIRIT: The Sunday's team spent years developing a deep and respected relationship with Sasanokawa, home of Asaka distillery, and master distiller Yamaguchi-san to ensure the highest quality whisky would be produced. Sasanokawa has been producing sake, shochu, and whisky in Fukushima since 1765. Sunday's Whisky is made to be a versatile tool behind any restaurant or at-home bar: a round, mellow and slightly sweet Whisky to be enjoyed straight-up but made to not dilute when added to a classic highball or other cocktail.

TASTING NOTES & COCKTAIL SUGGESTIONS: On the nose aromas of yuzu, sugar snap pea and apple cider donut. The palate shows notes of cocoa, fresh mint, and waffle with a rounded mouthfeel, in part from the soft water source. The finish showcases more sweet baking spice notes with pink peppercorn and barley.

Sunday's Whisky was crafted specifically to be the perfect base of a simple highball. The water of Koriyama and the surrounding area is soft and the result is a round, full-bodied texture that dilutes evenly in a highball or cocktail and bonds to accents such as lemon twists or orange peels.

SUNDAY'S SPIRITS: Sunday's Spirits is led by a team of restaurateurs, bartenders, and self-proclaimed Japanophiles who have made a name for themselves with some of the most popular restaurant concepts in Hong Kong. The Sunday's team was searching for a line of Japanese spirits that they wanted to stock behind their bars but seemed to be coming up short, so they went out to make their own. Through years of relationship building and collaborating, Sunday's partners with some of the most renown Japanese whisky, sake and shochu producers to make Sunday's Spirits. The result is a line of craft spirits that pay homage to Japanese tradition with an international and modern approach.
